Market Environment Overview

(unaudited)

U.S. equity markets, as measured by the S&P 500 Index, returned 29.88% in U.S. dollar terms for the 12-month fiscal period ending March 31, 2024 (the “period”).

U.S. markets fluctuated during the period with most of the nearly 30% gain coming from October 2023 through March 2024. Optimism pervaded the market as investors grew convinced that the U.S. Federal Reserve (“Fed”) was near the end of its rate hike cycle, which provided a significant tailwind to equities. Monthly non-farm payrolls and inflation reports characterized the entire period as investors digested each data point’s implication for the direction of monetary policy over the near-term, and equity markets followed accordingly. Consumer Price Index (“CPI”) inflation fell from 5% year-over-year at the start of the period to about 3.5% by its end, which was a welcome deceleration for the markets. Meanwhile, labor markets remained relatively steady with the headline unemployment rate ranging from 3.4-3.9% during the period. The combination of disinflation and a robust labor market prompted the Fed to increase the Federal Funds rate by only 50 basis points total between the May and July 2023 Federal Open Market Committee (“FOMC”) meetings. At the end of the period, it remains at 5.50%.

During the first quarter of the period, from April to June 2023, U.S. markets climbed 8.74% with virtually all the gains coming in June. Small cap equities (proxied by the Russell 2000 Index) grew slightly less at 5.21%. During the May FOMC meeting, the Fed increased the Federal Funds rate by 0.25% to end the quarter at 5.25%. This would eventually become the penultimate increase in its rate hike cycle, though it did little to discourage investors. Markets were propelled higher by continued disinflation in the CPI, which fell from 5% to 3% year-over-year during the quarter. Investors embraced this news and interpreted it as a continuation of an economic data trend that would soon lead to a pivot to accommodative monetary policy from the Fed. Meanwhile, labor markets remained on solid footing and real Gross Domestic Product (“GDP”) climbed 2.1% quarter-over-quarter from April through June 2023. Excitement about economic data and monetary policy implications outweighed the negative impact of S&P 500 earnings, which declined 4.1% quarter-over-quarter.

The second quarter of the period, from July to September 2023, was more tempered than the previous. U.S. markets declined by 3.27% while small caps suffered a bit more, falling 5.13%. A summertime spike in CPI inflation prompted the declines. Inflation rose from 3% at the start of the quarter to 3.7% year-over-year at its end. This scared investors into believing that the Fed would be forced to either raise the Federal Funds rate further, or at least leave rates higher for a longer period before pivoting to rate cuts. Despite the scare, the Fed only raised rates an additional 25 basis points (to 5.50%) during the July 2023 FOMC meeting, which would prove to be the final rate hike for the remainder of the period. The economy remained on solid footing during the quarter, as real GDP rose by a surprisingly high 4.9% quarter-over-quarter, despite a slight pickup in the unemployment rate from 3.5% to 3.8%. Once again, monetary policy implications had the greatest impact on markets during the quarter, as they declined despite 6% growth in quarterly earnings for the S&P 500.

The third quarter of the period kickstarted most of the equity market’s gains that would finish the period. U.S. markets returned 11.69% while small caps enjoyed a rally of their own, climbing 14.03% higher. The summertime spike in inflation proved to be temporary and the CPI resumed its deceleration, falling from 3.7% to 3.4% year-over-year. The unemployment rate remained in the 3.7% to 3.8% range, while real GDP grew 3.4% to conclude 2023. Investors were relieved by the renewed consistency in disinflation, steady economic growth, and robust labor markets, and propelled equities higher on restored optimism. Earnings added a positive tailwind, as S&P 500 earnings climbed 4.8% higher during the three months.

Investors entered 2024 with the same optimism that concluded 2023. U.S. markets climbed by over 10.5% while small caps enjoyed a modest 5.18% rally of their own. The Fed concluded the period by leaving the Federal Funds rates unchanged at 5.50%, which was supported by CPI inflation falling to about 3.5% year-over-year. The labor market has not showed many signs of weakness yet, which investors are interpreting as an achievement of the “soft economic landing” scenario (where the Fed is able to raise interest rates to subdue inflation without drastically harming the economy in the process). The headline unemployment rate remains at 3.8%. Real GDP has not yet been released as of the date of this report, and S&P 500 companies have not yet begun to report earnings for Q1 2024.

Entering the new period, markets are fixated on each economic data release so they may parse it for insights about the future direction of monetary policy. As of now, they are anticipating a pivot to rate cuts in the final few months of 2024, although the number and magnitude of cuts have been reduced since the start of the calendar year. The ongoing economic picture will continue to be assessed so that markets may adjust their expectations accordingly. Earnings results will also impact the direction of U.S. markets over the near-term.

Information about Performance and Shareholder Expense Examples (unaudited)

Performance

The performance tables on the following pages are provided for comparative purposes and represent the period noted. Each Fund's per share net asset value ("NAV") is the value of one share of the Fund and is calculated by dividing the value of total assets less total liabilities by the number of shares outstanding. The NAV return is based on the NAV of the Fund and the market price return is based on the market price per share of the Fund. The price used to calculate market price returns is the midpoint of the bid and ask price for Fund shares as of the close of trading on the exchange where Fund shares are listed. NAV and market price returns assume that dividends and capital gain distributions have been reinvested in the Fund at NAV and market price, respectively. As with other exchange traded funds ("ETFs"), NAV returns and market price returns may differ because of factors such as the supply and demand for Fund shares and investors' assessments of the underlying value of a Fund's portfolio securities.

Fund shares are bought and sold at market price (not NAV) and are not individually redeemed from a Fund. Fund NAV returns are calculated using a Fund's daily 4:00 p.m. eastern time NAV. Market price returns reflect the midpoint of the bid and ask price as of the close of trading on the exchange where Fund shares are listed. Market price returns do not represent the returns you would receive if you traded shares at other times. The returns do not reflect the deduction of taxes that a shareholder would pay on Fund distributions or on the redemption of Fund shares. Total returns for a period of less than one year are cumulative.

Performance is historical and does not guarantee future results. Current performance may be lower or higher than quoted. Investment returns and the principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. For the most recent month-end performance information visit www.wisdomtree.com/investments.

An index is a statistical measure of a specified financial market or sector. An index does not actually hold a portfolio of securities, incur expenses or pay any transaction costs. Therefore, index returns do not reflect deductions for fees or expenses and an index is not available for direct investment. In comparison, the Funds' performance is negatively impacted by these deductions. Fund returns do not reflect brokerage commissions or taxes on transactions in Fund shares or taxes that a shareholder would pay on Fund distributions. Past performance is no guarantee of future results.

Shareholder Expense Examples

Each Fund's performance table is accompanied by a shareholder expense example. As a shareholder of a WisdomTree Fund, you incur two types of cost: (1) transaction costs, including brokerage commissions on purchases and sales of your Fund shares and (2) ongoing costs, including management fees and other Fund expenses. The examples are intended to help you understand your ongoing costs (in dollars and cents) of investing in a Fund and to compare these costs with the ongoing costs of investing in other funds.

The examples are based on an investment of $1,000 invested at the beginning of the period and held for the entire period from October 1, 2023 to March 31, 2024. Except where noted, expenses are calculated using each Fund's annualized expense ratio (after the effect of contractual or voluntary fee waivers, if any), multiplied by the average account value for the period, multiplied by 183/366 (to reflect the one-half year period). The annualized expense ratio does not include acquired fund fees and expenses ("AFFEs"), which are fees and expenses incurred indirectly by a Fund through its investments in certain underlying investment companies.

Actual expenses

The first line in the shareholder expense example table shown on the following pages provides information about actual account values and actual expenses. You may use the information in this line, together with the amount you invested, to estimate the expenses that you paid over the period. Simply divide your account value by $1,000 (for example, an $8,600 account value divided by $1,000 = 8.6), then multiply the result by the number in the first line for your Fund under the heading entitled "Expenses Paid During the Period" to estimate the expenses you paid on your account during the period.

Hypothetical example for comparison purposes

The second line in the shareholder expense example table shown on the following pages provides information about hypothetical account values and hypothetical expenses based on the Fund's actual expense ratio and an assumed rate of return of 5% per year before expenses, which is not the Fund's actual return. The hypothetical account values and expenses may not be used to estimate the actual ending account balance or expenses you paid for the period. You may use this information to compare the ongoing costs of investing in your Fund and other funds. To do so, compare this 5% hypothetical example with the 5% hypothetical examples that appear in the shareholder reports of the other funds.

Please note that the expenses shown in the table are meant to highlight your ongoing costs only and do not reflect any transactional costs, such as brokerage commissions paid on purchases and sales of Fund shares. Therefore, the second line in the table is useful in comparing ongoing Fund costs only and will not help you determine the relative total costs of owning different funds. In addition, if these transactional costs were included, your costs would have been higher.

The WisdomTree U.S. AI Enhanced Value Fund (the "Fund") seeks income and capital appreciation by investing primarily in equity securities selected from a universe of U.S. equities that exhibit value characteristics based on the selection results of a proprietary, quantitative artificial intelligence ("AI") model developed by the Fund's sub-adviser, Voya Investment Management Co., LLC.

The Fund returned 13.93% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). Only two sectors provided relative positive Fund performance impacts during the period. Energy benefited due to strong stock selection and allocation effects, while Real Estate benefited solely from allocation effects. Consumer Discretionary, Materials and Industrials sectors all lagged due to negative stock selection impacts. Across price-to-earnings quintiles, all five contributed to relative Fund underperformance primarily due to poor stock selection.

The Fund returned 9.68% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). The Fund benefited from its position in the Materials sector, primarily due to stock selection effects. Most other sectors contributed to relative Fund underperformance, with Financials, Utilities and Industrials being the largest detractors due to a mixture of stock selection and allocation effects across all three sectors. Across dividend yield quintiles, all five contributed to relative Fund underperformance primarily due to poor stock selection. For the period ended March 31, 2024, the equity market environment in the United States favored growth as an investment style, and products with an emphasis on dividends were not rewarded by investors to a similar extent.

The Fund returned 28.94% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). The Fund exhibited strong performance, with sector contributions led by Communication Services, Information Technology, and Consumer Discretionary. Stock selection was additive across all three sectors, while Information Technology also contributed positively to performance due to asset allocation effects. Only Energy, Financials and Industrials had negative impacts, primarily due to allocation effects across all three sectors. Across price-to-earnings quintiles, the Fund benefited from positive stock selection within the bottom three quintiles (i.e. those with the highest valuations). Only the first quintile (i.e. those with the lowest valuations) had a negative impact, although its overall effect was negligible. This was due to modestly poor allocation effects.

The Fund returned 22.17% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). The Fund benefited from positions across most sectors, with Health Care, Information Technology, and Materials having the most pronounced effects. Allocation effects dominated the contributions from Health Care, while stock selection provided the support from Information Technology and Materials. Industrials, Real Estate and Communication Services were the only sectors to have a negative impact, with poor stock selection as the driving force in all three sectors. Across dividend yield quintiles, the second and third quintiles provided the strongest positive support primarily due to stock selection. The fourth and fifth quintiles featuring the lowest-yielding stocks had negative impacts on Fund performance due to poor stock selection and allocation effects.

The Fund returned 24.47% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). The Fund benefited from positions in the Consumer Staples and Health Care sectors due to positive stock selection in the former and allocation effects in the latter. Consumer Discretionary sector also had a positive impact to a combination of both effects. Financials and Information Technology negatively impacted performance, which were primarily due to poor stock selection in each sector. Across price-to-earnings (P/E) quintiles, the Fund benefited from the first and third quintiles due to a mix of positive stock selection and allocation effects in the former and solely stock selection in the latter. The fifth quintile, representing the highest P/E stocks, weighed on performance due to poor stock selection.

The Fund returned 25.84% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). The Fund benefited from positions in Consumer Discretionary, Energy, and Industrials due to positive stock selection in all three sectors. Communication Services, Information Technology and Financials sectors were the largest detractors from performance due to poor stock selection. Across volatility quintiles, the Fund benefited from the first and second quintiles, representing the least volatile stocks, due to strong stock selection. The fourth and fifth quintiles, which represent the most volatile, were laggards due to a mix of negative allocation and stock selection effects in both.

In seeking to track the Index, the Fund invests in dividend-paying large-cap companies with growth characteristics in the U.S. equity market. The Fund generally uses a representative sampling strategy to achieve its investment objective, meaning it generally will invest in a sample of securities in the Index.

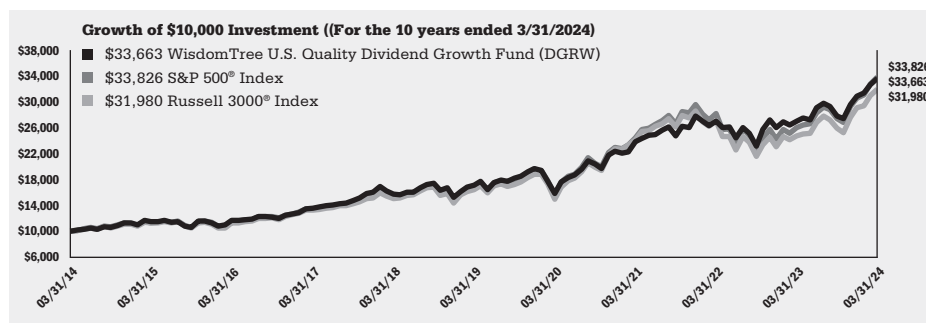

The Fund returned 24.48% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). The Fund benefited from positions in Utilities, Health Care, and Energy due to strong stock selection in Health Care and positive allocation effects in the two other sectors. Consumer Staples, Communication Services, and Industrials sectors weighed on performance during the period. Industrials featured poor stock selection, while Consumer Staples exhibited poor allocation effects, and Communication Services provided poor impacts from both effects. Across return-on-equity ("ROE") quintiles, only the fourth quintile (featuring lower ROE stocks) was additive due to a mix of allocation and stock selection impacts. The remaining other four quintiles detracted from Fund performance primarily due to poor stock selection, with negative allocation effects exacerbating the impact specifically in the first (highest ROE) and fifth (lowest ROE) quintiles.

The Fund returned 44.93% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). The Fund benefited primarily from an outsized impact in the Information Technology sector, where both allocation and stock selection effects were overwhelmingly positive. Communication Services and Consumer Staples sectors were also additive to a lesser extent due to positive stock selection in the former and allocation effects in the latter. The only sectors to provide a negative impact were Industrials and Financials, due to poor stock selection in both sectors. Across return-on-equity ("ROE") quintiles, all five quintiles exhibited positive performance effects during the period due to strong stock selection in each along with positive allocation effects in the first (highest ROE) and fourth (second-lowest ROE) quintiles. The latter impacts were due to an overweight and underweight to the first and fourth quintiles, respectively.

The Fund benefited from positions in the Real Estate and Energy sectors, primarily due to stock selection effects. Consumer Discretionary, Consumer Staples, and Financials weighed on Fund performance due to poor allocation effects in Consumer Staples and negative stock selection effects in the other two sectors. Most other sectors had negligibly positive or negative impacts to relative Fund performance. Across dividend yield quintiles, each one had mostly positive impacts to relative Fund performance. The top two quintiles, representing the highest-yielding stocks, had the most positive effects due to stock selection effects. The bottom three quintiles contributed to relative Fund underperformance but none were very pronounced. These were mainly due to poor stock selection as well.

The WisdomTree U.S. SmallCap Quality Dividend Growth Fund (the "Fund") seeks to track the price and yield performance, before fees and expenses, of the WisdomTree U.S. SmallCap Quality Dividend Growth Index (the "Index"). In seeking to track the Index, the Fund invests in dividend-paying small-cap companies with growth characteristics in the U.S. equity market. The Fund generally uses a representative sampling strategy to achieve its investment objective, meaning it generally will invest in a sample of securities in the Index.

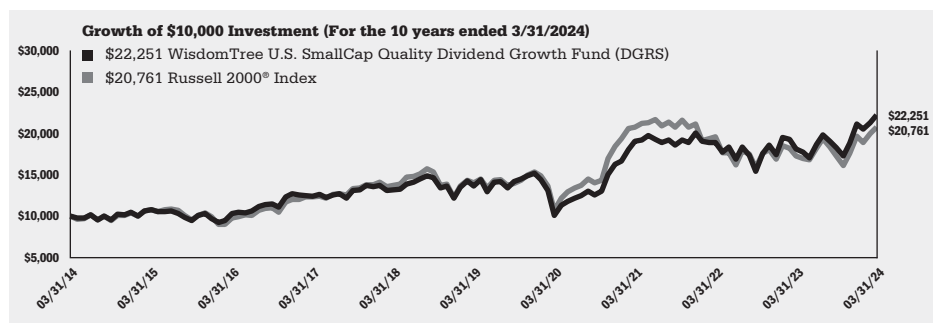

The Fund returned 22.40% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). The Fund benefited from positions in the Financials, Real Estate and Energy sectors due to strong stock selection and allocation effects in each sector. The primary detractors were the Consumer Staples and Information Technology sectors due to negative stock selection in the former and a mix of poor stock selection and allocation effects in the latter. Across return-on-equity ("ROE") quintiles, the first (representing the highest ROE) and fourth (representing the second-lowest ROE) quintiles exhibited positive performance impacts due to allocation effects in the former and stock selection effects in the latter. The other three quintiles detracted from performance due to a mix of negative stock selection effects.

The WisdomTree U.S. Total Dividend Fund (the "Fund") seeks to track the price and yield performance, before fees and expenses, of the WisdomTree U.S. Dividend Index (the "Index"). In seeking to track the Index, the Fund invests in U.S. equities from a broad range of dividend-paying companies. The Fund generally uses a representative sampling strategy to achieve its investment objective, meaning it generally will invest in a sample of securities in the Index.

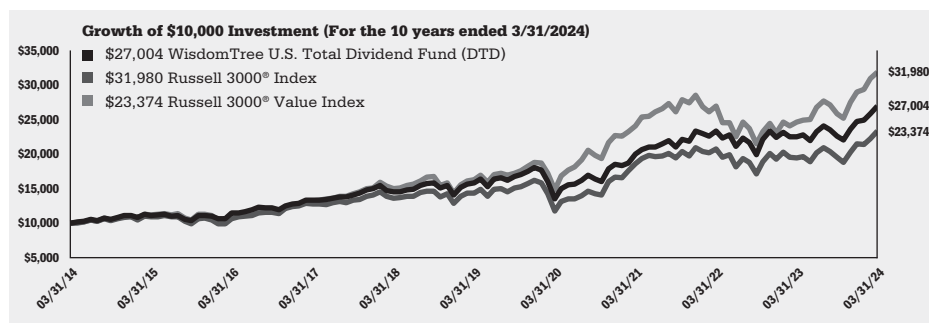

The Fund returned 19.75% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). The Fund benefited the most from its position in the Information Technology sector, which featured overwhelmingly positive allocation and stock selection effects. Health Care and Materials sectors also contributed positively, albeit to a lesser extent, mainly due to positive stock selection. Communication Services, Industrials and Financials sectors all detracted from performance, with Industrials' impact due to poor stock selection, Financials' impact due to negative allocation effects, and Communication Services' impact due to a negative mix of both effects. Across dividend yield quintiles, the fifth (i.e. lowest dividend yield) quintile had a significantly positive performance impact due to an approximately equal mix of both positive allocation and strong stock selection effects. The third quintile was also additive, though primarily due to stock selection. The second and fourth quintiles detracted from Fund performance mainly due to poor stock selection in the latter and a mix of negative stock selection and allocation effects in the former.

The WisdomTree U.S. Value Fund (the "Fund") is actively managed using a model-based approach seeking income and capital appreciation by investing primarily in U.S. equity securities that provide a high total shareholder yield with favorable relative quality characteristics.

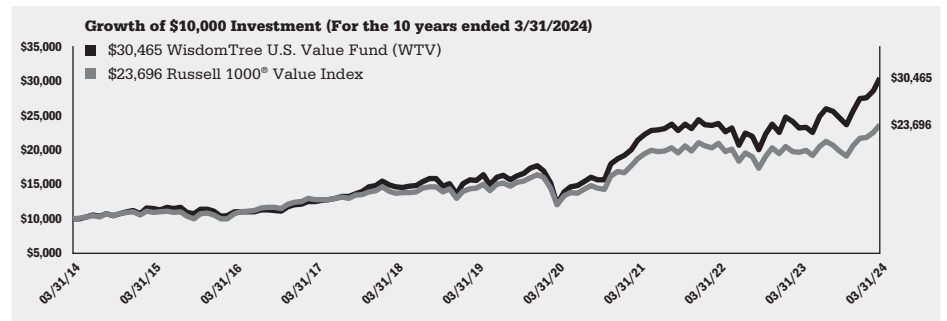

The Fund returned 31.10% at net asset value ("NAV") for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 (for more complete performance information please see the table below). Most sectors contributed positively to performance during the period. Health Care, Consumer Discretionary and Utilities sectors all benefited due to strong stock selection effects. Only Financials and Communication Services detracted from performance due to poor allocation effects in Financials and negative stock selection within Communication Services. Across price-to-earnings quintiles, all five contributed positively exclusively due to strong stock selection.

Description of Terms and Indexes (unaudited)

Below are descriptions of certain terms and of each Index referenced in this report:

Allocation Effect measures an investment manager's ability to effectively allocate a portfolio's assets to various segments. A segment refers to assets or securities that are grouped within a certain classification such as sectors, industries, or countries. The allocation effect determines whether the overweighting or underweighting of segments relative to a benchmark contributes positively or negatively to the overall portfolio return. Positive allocation occurs when the portfolio is overweighted in a segment that outperforms the benchmark and underweighted in a segment that underperforms the benchmark. Negative allocation occurs when the portfolio is overweighted in a segment that underperforms the benchmark and underweighted in a segment that outperforms the benchmark.

Correlation is a statistical measure of how two sets of returns move in relation to each other. Correlation coefficients range from -1 to 1. A correlation of 1 means the two subjects of analysis move in lockstep with each other. A correlation of -1 means the two subjects of analysis have moved in exactly the opposite direction.

Factors generally are attributes that are based on fundamentals or share price behavior.

Gross Domestic Product (GDP) is the total monetary or market value of all the finished goods and services produced within a country's borders in a specific time period. As a broad measure of overall domestic production, it functions as a comprehensive scorecard of a country's economic health.

Growth is generally characterized by higher price levels relative to fundamentals, such as dividends or earnings. Price levels are higher because investors are willing to pay more due to their expectations of future improvements in these fundamentals.

Momentum is generally characterized by assets with recent price increase trends over time. This term is also associated with the momentum factor which associates these stock characteristics with excess return vs. the market over time.

Price-to-earnings (P/E) ratio measures a company's share price relative to its earnings per share.

Quality is generally characterized by higher efficiency and profitability. Typical measures include earnings, return-on-equity, return on assets, operating profitability as well as others. This term is also related to the quality factor, which associates these stock characteristics with excess returns vs. the market over time.

Quintiles refers to separating a universe of companies into five groups of equal size on the basis of dividend yield, price-to-earnings, or return-on-equity, as applicable.

Return-on-Equity (ROE) measures a corporation's profitability by revealing how much profit a company generates with the money shareholders have invested.

The Russell 1000® Growth Index measures the performance of the large-cap growth segment of the U.S. equity universe. It includes those Russell 1000® companies with higher price-to-book ratios and higher forecasted growth values. The Russell 1000® Growth Index is constructed to provide a comprehensive and unbiased barometer for the large-cap growth segment.

The Russell 1000® Index represents the top 1,000 companies by market capitalization in the United States.

The Russell 1000® Value Index is a capitalization-weighted index that is comprised of the large-capitalization value segment of the U.S. equity universe, selecting from the Russell 1000 Index.

The Russell 2000® Index is a capitalization-weighted index that is comprised of the smallest 2,000 securities in the Russell 3000 Index, based on total market capitalization.

The Russell 2000® Value Index is a capitalization-weighted index that is comprised of the small-capitalization value segment of the U.S. equity universe, selecting from the Russell 2000 Index.

The Russell 3000® Index is a capitalization-weighted index that is comprised of the 3,000 largest U.S. companies, based on total market capitalization.

The Russell 3000® Value Index is a capitalization-weighted index that measures the performance of the value segment of the broad U.S. equity market, selecting from the Russell 3000 Index.

The Russell MidCap® Index is a market capitalization-weighted index that is comprised of the smallest 800 stocks of the Russell 1000 Index.

The Russell MidCap® Value Index is a capitalization-weighted index that measures the midcap value segment of the U.S. equity universe, selecting from the Russell MidCap Index.

The S&P 500® Equal Weight Index is the equal-weight version of the widely used S&P 500® Index. The index includes the same constituents as the capitalization-weighted S&P 500 Index, but each company is allocated a fixed weight—or 0.2% of the index total at each quarterly rebalance.

The S&P 500® Index is a capitalization-weighted index of 500 stocks selected by the Standard & Poor's Index Committee, designed to represent the performance of the leading industries in the United States economy.

The S&P MidCap 400® Index is a capitalization-weighted index that is comprised of the mid-capitalization range of the U.S. stock market, with stocks selected by the Standard & Poor's Index Committee.

Selection Effect measures an investment manager's ability to select securities within a given segment relative to a benchmark. The over or underperformance of the portfolio is weighted by the benchmark weight, therefore, selection is not affected by the investment manager's allocation to the segment. The weight of the segment in the portfolio determines the size of the effect—the larger the segment, the larger the effect is, positive or negative. A positive selection effect occurs when the portfolio return is greater than the benchmark return. Thus, the investment manager made good decisions in selecting securities that, as a whole, outperformed similar securities in the benchmark. A negative selection effect occurs when the portfolio return is less than the benchmark return. Thus, the investment manager made poor decisions in selecting securities that, as a whole, underperformed similar securities in the benchmark.

Shareholder Yield generally refers to a data point that references a combination of dividend yield and buyback yield.

Value is generally characterized by lower price levels relative to fundamentals, such as earnings or dividends. Prices are lower because investors are less certain of the performance of these fundamentals in the future. This term is also related to the value factor, which associates these stock characteristics with excess returns vs. the market over time.

Volatility is a statistical measure of the dispersion of returns for a given security or market index around a particular average level. If the price stays relatively stable, the security has low volatility. A highly volatile security hits new highs and lows quickly, moves erratically, and has rapid increases and dramatic falls.

The WisdomTree U.S. Dividend Index defines the dividend-paying portion of the U.S. stock market.

The WisdomTree U.S. High Dividend Index is comprised of companies with high dividend yields, selected from the WisdomTree U.S. Dividend Index.

The WisdomTree U.S. LargeCap Dividend Index is comprised of the large-capitalization segment of the U.S. dividend-paying market, selected from the WisdomTree U.S. Dividend Index.

The WisdomTree U.S. LargeCap Index is a fundamentally weighted index that measures the performance of earnings-generating companies within the large-capitalization segment of the U.S. stock market.

The WisdomTree U.S. MidCap Dividend Index is comprised of the mid-capitalization segment of the U.S. dividend-paying market, selected from the WisdomTree U.S. Dividend Index.

The WisdomTree U.S. MidCap Index is a fundamentally weighted index that measures the performance of earnings-generating companies within the mid-capitalization segment of the U.S. stock market.

The WisdomTree U.S. MidCap Quality Growth Index is composed of the top scoring 30% of companies that comprise the top 60% of U.S. companies by market capitalization, after the 500 largest companies have been removed, that are ranked on a composite score of two fundamental factors: growth and quality, which are equally weighted.

The WisdomTree U.S. Multifactor Index is comprised of 200 U.S. companies with the highest composite scores based on two fundamental factors, value and quality measures, and two technical factors, momentum and correlation.

Description of Terms and Indexes (unaudited) (concluded)

² Based on average shares outstanding.

⁴ Does not include expenses of the Underlying Funds in which the Fund invests.

⁷ The increase in the portfolio turnover rate was primarily a result of the change in investment objective and strategy on January 18, 2022.

* Commencement of operations. The commencement of operations date is considered to be the date that the Fund began trading in the secondary market.

³ Portfolio turnover rate is not annualized for fiscal periods less than one year and excludes the value of the portfolio securities received or delivered as a result of in-kind creations or redemptions of the Fund's capital shares. Short-term securities with maturities less than or equal to 365 days are excluded from the portfolio turnover calculation.

⁷ Per share amounts were adjusted to reflect a 2:1 share split effective June 10, 2021.

⁸ Prior to January 3, 2022, the Fund's annual advisory fee rate was 0.38% and, thereafter, was reduced to 0.12% per annum.

1. ORGANIZATION

WisdomTree Trust (the “Trust”) is registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended (the “1940 Act”), as an open-end management investment company. The Trust was established as a Delaware statutory trust on December 15, 2005 and is authorized to have multiple series of portfolios (each a “Fund”, collectively, the “Funds”). These notes relate only to the Funds listed below. In accordance with Accounting Standards Codification Topic 946, Financial Services-Investment Companies, each Fund listed below qualifies as an investment company and is applying the accounting and reporting guidance for investment companies.

Each Fund, except the U.S. AI Enhanced Value Fund and U.S. Value Fund, seeks to track the price and yield performance, before fees and expenses, of a particular index (“Index”) developed by WisdomTree, Inc. (“WisdomTree”) or an Index developed by a third party. The U.S. AI Enhanced Value Fund and the U.S. Value Fund are actively managed using a model-based approach seeking income and capital appreciation. WisdomTree is the parent company of WisdomTree Asset Management, Inc. (“WTAM”), the investment adviser to each Fund and the Trust. “WisdomTree” is a registered trademark of WisdomTree and has been licensed for use by the Trust. Each Fund described herein is considered to be non-diversified as defined under the 1940 Act.

In the normal course of business, the Funds may enter into contracts that contain a variety of representations or that provide indemnification for certain liabilities. The Funds’ maximum exposure under these arrangements is unknown, as this would involve future claims that may be made against the Funds that have not yet occurred. However, the Funds have not had prior claims or losses pursuant to these contracts and believe such exposure to be remote.

2. SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The Financial Accounting Standards Board (“FASB”) Accounting Standards Codification (the “Codification”) is the exclusive reference of authoritative U.S. generally accepted accounting principles (“GAAP”) recognized by the FASB to be applied by nongovernmental entities. Rules and interpretive releases of the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) under authority of federal laws are also sources of authoritative GAAP for SEC registrants.

The following is a summary of significant accounting policies followed by the Funds:

Use of Estimates — The preparation of financial statements in conformity with GAAP requires management to make certain estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of increases and decreases in the net assets from operations during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Investment Valuation — The net asset value (“NAV”) of each Fund’s shares is calculated each day a Fund is open for business as of the regularly scheduled close of regular trading on the New York Stock Exchange, normally 4:00 p.m. Eastern time (the “NAV Calculation Time”). NAV per share is calculated by dividing a Fund’s net assets by the number of Fund shares outstanding. Each Fund issues and redeems shares at NAV only in large blocks of shares known as creation units, which only certain institutions (e.g., broker-dealers) may purchase or redeem. Shares of each Fund are listed on a national securities exchange and trade at market prices. Most investors will buy and sell shares in the secondary market through brokers. Because Fund shares trade at market prices rather than NAV, shares may trade at a price greater than NAV or less than NAV. In calculating each Fund’s NAV, investments are valued under policies approved by the Board of Trustees of the Trust (the “Board” or “Board of Trustees”). Equity securities (including preferred stock) traded on any recognized U.S. or non-U.S. exchange are valued at the last sale price or official closing price on the exchange on which they are principally traded. Unlisted equity securities (including preferred stock) are valued at the last sale price or, if no sale price is available, at the mean between the highest bid and lowest ask price. Each Fund may invest in money market funds which are valued at their NAV per share and exchange-traded funds (“ETFs” or “ETF”) or exchange-traded notes (“ETNs” or “ETN”) which are valued at their last sale or official closing price on the exchange on which they are principally traded or at their NAV per share in instances where the ETF or ETN has not traded on its principal exchange.

Pursuant to Board-approved valuation procedures established by the Trust and WTAM, the Board has appointed WTAM as the Funds’ valuation designee (the “Valuation Designee”) to perform all fair valuations of the Funds’ portfolio investments, subject to the Board’s oversight. As the Valuation Designee, WTAM has established procedures for its fair valuation of a Fund’s portfolio investments. These procedures address, among other things, determining when market quotations are not readily available or reliable and the methodologies to be used for determining the fair value of investments, as well as the use and oversight of third-party pricing services for fair valuation. The Valuation Designee is comprised of senior representatives of WTAM and reports to the Board of Trustees on a quarterly basis. In the event that a financial instrument cannot be valued based upon a price from the exchange or system on which it is principally traded, independent pricing service provider or broker-dealer quotation, or such prices are deemed to not reflect current market value, the Valuation Designee may value the financial instrument in good faith under the policies and procedures approved by the Board of Trustees based on current facts and circumstances. Securities that may be valued using “fair value” pricing may include, but are not limited to, securities for which there are no current market quotations, securities whose issuer is in default or bankruptcy, securities subject to corporate actions (such as mergers or reorganizations), securities subject to non-U.S. investment limits or currency controls, and securities affected by “significant events”. An example of a significant event is an event occurring after the close of the market in which a security trades but before a Fund’s next NAV Calculation Time that may materially affect the value of a Fund’s investment (e.g., government action, natural disaster, or significant market fluctuation). When fair value pricing is employed, the prices of securities used by a Fund to calculate its NAV may differ from quoted or published prices for the same securities.

Fair Value Measurement — In accordance with Codification Topic 820 (“ASC 820”), Fair Value Measurements and Disclosures, fair value is defined as the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. The Valuation Designee will perform other procedures (consistent with GAAP) to value an investment when a market quote is not available. ASC 820 established a three-tier hierarchy of inputs to be used when determining fair value measurements for disclosure purposes. Inputs refer broadly to the assumptions that market participants would use in pricing the asset or liability, including assumptions about risk — for example, the risk inherent in a particular valuation technique used to measure fair value (such as a pricing model) and/or the risk inherent in the inputs to the valuation technique. Inputs may be observable or unobservable. Observable inputs reflect the assumptions market participants would use in pricing the asset or liability. Observable inputs are based on market data obtained from sources independent of the reporting entity. Unobservable inputs reflect the reporting entity’s own assumptions about the assumptions market participants would use in pricing the asset or liability. Unobservable inputs are based on the best information available in the circumstances. The three-tier hierarchy of inputs is summarized in the three broad levels listed below:

- Level 1 – quoted prices in active markets for identical securities
- Level 2 – other significant observable inputs (including quoted prices for similar securities, interest rates, prepayment speeds, credit risk, etc.)
- Level 3 – significant unobservable inputs (including each Fund’s assumptions in determining the fair value of investments)

The inputs or methodology used for valuation are not necessarily an indication of the risk associated with investing in those investments.

Investments that use Level 2 or Level 3 inputs may include, but are not limited to: (i) an unlisted security related to corporate actions; (ii) a restricted security (e.g., one that may not be publicly sold without registration under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended); (iii) a security whose trading has been suspended (either due to events affecting the issuer of the security specifically or events affecting the primary trading exchange more broadly) or which has been de-listed from its primary trading exchange; (iv) a security that is thinly traded; (v) a security in default or bankruptcy proceedings for which there is no current market quotation or market activity; (vi) a security affected by currency controls or restrictions; and (vii) a security affected by a significant event (e.g., an event that occurs after the close of the markets in which the security is traded but before the time as of which a Fund’s NAV is computed and that may materially affect the value of the Fund’s investments).

The valuation techniques and significant inputs used in determining the fair market value measurements for Level 2 and Level 3 positions are as follows:

Financial instruments are generally valued by independent pricing service providers that use broker-dealer quotations, reported trades or valuation estimates from their internal pricing models. Depending on the type of financial instrument, the independent pricing service providers' internal pricing models may use inputs that are observable such as issuer details (e.g., credit rating, debt ranking, coupon date, maturity date, etc.), interest rates, yield curves, prepayment speeds, credit risks/spreads, default rates and quoted prices for similar assets. Financial instruments that use similar valuation techniques and observable inputs as described above and have an appropriate level of market activity are categorized as Level 2 of the fair value hierarchy, otherwise a Level 3 fair value classification is appropriate.

Determination of a fair value by the Valuation Designee may include significant unobservable inputs and therefore such financial instruments would be reflected as a Level 3 of the fair value hierarchy. The Valuation Designee may employ a market-based valuation approach which may use, among other potential considerations, related or comparable securities, recent transactions, market multiples, and other relevant information to determine fair value. The Valuation Designee may also use an income-based valuation approach in which anticipated future cash flows of the financial instrument are discounted to calculate fair value.

The summary of fair valuations according to the inputs used in valuing each Fund's assets as of the measurement date is included in a "Fair Valuation Summary" supplementary table in each applicable Fund's Schedule of Investments.

During the fiscal year or period ended March 31, 2024, there were no significant transfers into or out of Level 3 of the fair value hierarchy.

Derivatives and Hedging Disclosure — Codification Topic 815 ("ASC 815"), Derivatives and Hedging, requires qualitative disclosures about objectives and strategies for using derivatives, quantitative disclosures about fair value amounts of gains and losses on derivative instruments, and disclosures about credit-risk-related contingent features in derivative agreements. All of the derivative instruments disclosed and described herein are subject to risk.

For the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024, the effects of derivative instruments on each applicable Fund's financial performance as reflected in the Statements of Operations are presented in the summary below:

Fund	Amount of Realized Gain on Derivatives Recognized ¹
U.S. Multifactor Fund
Equity risk	$101,091
U.S. SmallCap Quality Dividend Growth Fund
Equity risk	72,103
U.S. Value Fund
Equity risk	11,285
¹ Realized gains on derivatives are located on the Statements of Operations as follows:
Equity risk	Net realized gain from futures contracts

During the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024, the volume of derivative activity (based on the average of month-end notional balances, except where footnoted) for each Fund was as follows:

Fund	Average Notional Futures contracts (long)
U.S. Multifactor Fund
Equity risk ¹	$970,373
U.S. SmallCap Quality Dividend Growth Fund
Equity risk ¹	215,906
U.S. Value Fund

Investment Transactions and Investment Income — Investment transactions are recorded as of the date that the securities are purchased or sold (trade date). Realized gains and losses on sales of portfolio securities are calculated using the identified-cost method. Dividend income (less foreign taxes withheld, if any) is recognized on the ex-dividend date. Non-cash dividend income is recognized on the ex-dividend date at the fair value of securities to be received. Upon notification from real estate investment trust ("REIT") issuers or as estimated by management, all or a portion of the dividend income received from a REIT may be redesignated as a reduction of cost of the related investment and/or as a realized gain. On each measurement date, the Funds evaluate the collectability of receivable balances. Generally, the Funds will write-off dividend receivable balances that are canceled by the issuer as of the date that the dividend receivable cancellation notification was publicly made available or when it becomes probable that dividends will not be collected and the amount of uncollectable dividends can be reasonably estimated. Income earned from securities lending activities (i.e., securities lending income), net of fees payable to the securities borrower and/or securities lending agent, is accrued daily.

Foreign Taxes — The Funds may be subject to foreign taxes (a portion of which may be reclaimable or refundable) on foreign income. All foreign taxes are recorded in accordance with the applicable foreign tax regulations and tax rates that exist in the foreign jurisdictions in which the Funds invest. These foreign taxes, if any, are accrued and applied to foreign income as the foreign income is earned and are reflected on the Statements of Operations as follows: foreign taxes withheld on dividends are presented as a reduction to investment income in “Less: Foreign withholding taxes on dividends”, foreign taxes on capital gains from investment transactions, if any, are included in “Net realized gain (loss) from investment transactions”, and deferred foreign taxes on net unrealized appreciation on investments, if any, are included in “Net increase (decrease) in unrealized appreciation/depreciation on investment transactions”. Foreign taxes payable or deferred as of March 31, 2024, if any, are disclosed in the Statements of Assets and Liabilities in “Payables: Foreign capital gains tax”.

Expenses — Under the investment advisory agreement for each Fund, except for Funds that commenced operations on or after March 26, 2013, WTAM has agreed to pay all expenses of the Trust, except for: (i) brokerage expenses and other expenses (such as stamp taxes) connected with the execution of portfolio transactions or in connection with creation and redemption transactions; (ii) legal fees or expenses in connection with any arbitration, litigation or pending or threatened arbitration or litigation, including any settlements in connection therewith; (iii) compensation and expenses of trustees who are not interested persons of the Funds (“Independent Trustees”); (iv) compensation and expenses of counsel to the Independent Trustees; (v) compensation and expenses of the Trust’s Chief Compliance Officer (“CCO”); (vi) extraordinary expenses; (vii) distribution fees and expenses paid by the Trust under any distribution plan adopted pursuant to Rule 12b-1 under the 1940 Act; and (viii) the advisory fee payable to WTAM.

Under the investment advisory agreement for Funds that commenced operations on or after March 26, 2013, WTAM has agreed to pay all expenses of the Trust, except for: (i) brokerage expenses and other fees, charges, taxes, levies or expenses (such as stamp taxes) incurred in connection with the execution of portfolio transactions or in connection with creation and redemption transactions (including without limitation any fees, charges, taxes, levies or expenses related to the purchase or sale of an amount of any currency, or the patriation or repatriation of any security or other asset, related to the execution of portfolio transactions or any creation or redemption transactions); (ii) legal fees or expenses in connection with any arbitration, litigation or pending or threatened arbitration or litigation, including any settlements in connection therewith; (iii) compensation and expenses of each Independent Trustee; (iv) compensation and expenses of counsel to the Independent Trustees; (v) compensation and expenses of the Trust’s CCO; (vi) extraordinary expenses (in each case as determined by a majority of the Independent Trustees); (vii) distribution fees and expenses paid by the Trust under any distribution plan adopted pursuant to Rule 12b-1 under the 1940 Act; (viii) interest and taxes of any kind or nature (including, but not limited to, income, excise, transfer and withholding taxes); (ix) fees and expenses related to the provision of securities lending services; and (x) the advisory fee payable to WTAM.

Acquired fund fees and expenses (“AFFEs”) (which are fees and expenses incurred indirectly by a Fund through its investments in certain underlying investment companies) are not operating expenses of the Funds and are not paid by WTAM.

Pursuant to a separate contractual arrangement, WTAM arranges for the provision of CCO services with respect to each Fund, and is liable and responsible for, and administers, payments to the CCO, the Independent Trustees and counsel to the Independent Trustees. WTAM receives a fee, as shown on the Statements of Operations under “Service fees”, of up to 0.0044% per annum of each Fund’s average daily net assets for providing such services and paying such expenses. WTAM provides CCO services to the Trust.

Futures Contracts — The U.S. Multifactor Fund, U.S. SmallCap Quality Dividend Growth Fund and U.S. Value Fund each utilized equity futures contracts on a temporary basis during the fiscal year to obtain market exposure consistent with their investment objective during each Fund’s periodic portfolio rebalance. When a Fund purchases a listed futures contract, it agrees to purchase a specified reference asset (e.g., commodity, currency, equity, digital asset or U.S. Treasury security, collectively herein, “Reference Asset”) at a specified future date. When a Fund sells a listed futures contract, it agrees to sell a specified Reference Asset at a future date. The price at which the purchase and sale will take place is fixed when the Fund enters into the contract. A Fund may also cash settle upon the expiration date of a futures contract in which no physical delivery (or receipt) of the specified Reference Asset comprising the futures contract is made. Instead, settlement in cash would occur upon the expiration of the contract, with the cash settlement being the difference between the contract price and the actual price of the specified Reference Asset at the expiration date. The exchange clearing corporation is the ultimate counterparty for all exchange-listed contracts, so credit risk is limited to the creditworthiness of the exchange clearing corporation.

Upon entering into a futures contract, a Fund is required to deliver to a broker an amount of cash and/or U.S. government securities equal to a certain percentage of the contract amount. This amount is known as the “initial margin”. Cash deposited as initial margin, if any, is shown as “Deposits at broker for futures contracts” in the Statements of Assets and Liabilities, and U.S. government securities deposited, if any, are designated in the Schedule of Investments. Subsequent payments, known as “variation margin”, generally are made or received by the Fund each day or at other agreed-upon time periods depending on the fluctuations in the value of the underlying futures contracts, except that in the case of certain futures contracts, variation margin payments may be made or received when the futures contract expires. Variation margin is recorded for financial statement purposes on a daily basis as an unrealized gain or loss on futures until the financial futures contract is closed, at which time the unrealized net gain or loss is reclassified to realized gain or loss on futures. The Funds have adopted a derivatives risk management program pursuant to Rule 18f-4 under the 1940 Act to assess and manage the Funds’ derivatives risk. Rule 18f-4 limits the amount of derivatives a fund can enter into and replaces the asset segregation framework previously used by the Funds to comply with Section 18 of the 1940 Act.

As of March 31, 2024, there were no open futures contracts in the Funds.

Securities Lending — Each Fund may lend portfolio securities to certain creditworthy borrowers, including the Funds’ securities lending agent. It is the Funds’ policy that, at origination, all loans are secured by collateral of at least 102% of the value of U.S. securities loaned and 105% of the value of foreign securities loaned. Collateral in the form of cash and/or securities issued or guaranteed by the U.S. government or its agencies, equivalent to at least 100% of the market value of securities, is maintained at all times. The cash collateral can be invested in certain money market mutual funds which also have exposure to the fluctuations of the market. The values of the investments of cash collateral for securities on loan along with the obligations to return such collateral are included on the Statements of Assets and Liabilities. The total value of securities received as collateral for securities on loan is included in a footnote following each Schedule of Investments, but is not included within the Statements of Assets and Liabilities because the receiving Fund does not have the right to sell or repledge the securities received as collateral. As compensation for lending its securities, each Fund retains all or a portion of the interest received on investment of cash collateral or receives a fee from the borrower (net of any fee rebates paid to the borrower). The lending agent receives a portion of the income earned by the Funds in connection with the lending program. The net securities lending income earned by the Funds is disclosed on the Statements of Operations. The dividend and interest income earned on the securities loaned is accounted for in the same manner as other dividend and interest income. The borrower pays to the Funds an amount equal to any dividends or interest received on loaned securities. Dividends received while a security is out on loan are not considered Qualified Dividend Income (“QDI”) under the specific criteria issued by the Internal Revenue Service and are subject to taxation at the shareholder’s ordinary income tax rate instead of the lower long-term capital gains tax rate. Lending portfolio securities could result in a loss or delay in recovering each Fund’s securities if the borrower defaults. In the event of a borrower default with respect to the failure to return to each Fund some or all of the securities loaned, the securities lending agent shall indemnify each Fund against the failure of the borrower if the value of the collateral received is insufficient to cover the market value of the securities loaned.

Master Netting Arrangements — Codification Topic 210 (“ASC 210”), Balance Sheet, requires disclosures generally intended to (i) help investors and other financial statement users to better assess the effect or potential effect of offsetting arrangements on a company’s financial position, (ii) improve transparency in the reporting of how companies mitigate credit risk, and (iii) facilitate comparisons between those entities that prepare their financial statements on the basis of GAAP and those entities that prepare their financial statements on the basis of international financial reporting standards. ASC 210 requires entities to disclose (i) gross and net information about both instruments and transactions eligible for offset in the financial statements, and (ii) instruments and transactions subject to an agreement similar to a master netting agreement. ASC 210 is limited in scope to the following financial instruments, to the extent they are offset in the financial statements or subject to an enforceable master netting arrangement or similar agreement: (i) recognized derivative instruments accounted for under ASC 815 (Derivatives and Hedging); (ii) repurchase agreements and reverse repurchase agreements; and (iii) securities borrowing and securities lending transactions.

The Funds’ securities lending activities are governed by a Securities Lending Authorization Agreement (“Lending Agreement”) between the Funds and the lending agent. The Lending Agreement authorizes the lending agent to lend qualifying U.S. and foreign securities held by a Fund to approved borrowers (each a “Borrower”). To mitigate borrower risk, a Fund typically receives from a Borrower collateral in the form of U.S. dollar cash and/or securities issued or guaranteed by the U.S. government or its agencies in excess of the market value of the securities loaned. Under the provisions of the Lending Agreement, a Fund shall have, as to the collateral, all of the rights and remedies of a secured party under applicable law. A Fund is exposed to risk of loss if a Borrower defaults on its obligation to return borrowed securities and the value of the collateral a Fund received is insufficient to cover the market value of the securities loaned. Also, the lending agent is permitted to invest the cash collateral it receives from a Borrower into a money market fund which is subject to market fluctuation. Therefore, a Fund is exposed to risk of loss if the value of invested cash collateral is insufficient to satisfy the Fund’s obligation to return the full amount owed to such Borrower. However, in the event of a borrower default with respect to the failure to return to each Fund some or all of the securities loaned, the securities lending agent shall indemnify each Fund against the failure of the borrower if the value of the collateral received is insufficient to cover the market value of the securities loaned.

For financial reporting purposes, the Funds elect to not offset assets and liabilities subject to the Lending Agreement or similar arrangements in the Statements of Assets and Liabilities. Therefore, all qualifying transactions, if any at March 31, 2024, are presented on a gross basis in the Statements of Assets and Liabilities. As of March 31, 2024, certain of the Funds had securities on loan and the value of the related collateral received by each of those Funds exceeded the value of the securities loaned by each of those Funds. The value of the securities loaned by each Fund is located in the Statements of Assets and Liabilities in “Investments in securities, at value” and also in the footnotes below the Schedules of Investments. In addition, a breakout of the total amount of cash and non-cash securities lending collateral received is located in the footnotes below the Schedules of Investments.

Short-Term Investments — Each Fund may invest a portion of its assets in high-quality money market instruments on an ongoing basis to provide liquidity or for other reasons. The instruments include short-term obligations issued by the U.S. government, its agencies, non-U.S. government agencies, negotiable certificates of deposit (“CDs”), fixed time deposits and bankers’ acceptances of U.S. and foreign banks and similar institutions, commercial papers, repurchase agreements and money market funds. CDs are short-term negotiable obligations of commercial banks. Time deposits are non-negotiable deposits maintained in banking institutions for specified periods of time at stated interest rates. Banker’s acceptances are time drafts drawn on commercial banks by borrowers, usually in connection with international transactions.

Tax Information and Dividends and Distributions to Shareholders — It is each Fund’s policy to comply with all requirements of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the “Code”). A portion of the Code, known as subchapter M (“Subchapter M”), addresses the ways by which investment companies and investment trusts may pass income through to shareholders in order to avoid double taxation. Each Fund intends to qualify for and to elect treatment as a separate Regulated Investment Company (“RIC”) under Subchapter M of the Code so that it will not be subject to federal income tax on income and gains that are timely distributed to Fund shareholders. Accordingly, no provision for U.S. federal income taxes is required. In order to qualify for the special tax treatment accorded to RICs and their shareholders, each Fund must, among other things, distribute with respect to each taxable year an amount equal to or greater than the sum of 90% of its investment company taxable income and 90% of its net tax-exempt interest income. There can be no guarantee that a Fund will pay dividends. Taxable net realized gains from investment transactions, reduced by capital loss carryforwards, if any, are declared and distributed to shareholders at least annually. The capital loss carryforward amount, if any, is available to offset future net capital gains. The Funds may occasionally be required to make supplemental distributions at some other time during the year. The Trust reserves the right to declare special distributions if, in its reasonable discretion, such action is necessary or advisable to preserve the status of each Fund as a RIC or to avoid imposition of income or excise taxes on undistributed income. Dividends and distributions to shareholders are recorded on the ex-dividend date. The amount of dividends and distributions from net investment income and net realized capital gains is determined in accordance with the requirements of the Code and the U.S. Treasury regulations (i.e., tax basis) which may differ to amounts determined under GAAP (i.e., book basis). These book/tax differences are either considered temporary or permanent in nature. To the extent these differences are permanent in nature, such amounts are reclassified within the components of net assets based on their Federal tax basis treatment; temporary differences do not require reclassification. Dividends and distributions that exceed earnings and profit for tax purposes are reported for tax purposes as a return of capital.

3. ADVISORY FEES AND OTHER TRANSACTIONS WITH AFFILIATES

WTAM has overall responsibility for the general management and administration of the Trust. WTAM provides an investment program for each Fund. WTAM has arranged for Mellon Investments Corporation (“Mellon”) to provide sub-advisory services to the Funds, except for U.S. AI Enhanced Value Fund. Prior to January 7, 2022, sub-advisory services for the U.S. AI Enhanced Value Fund were provided by Mellon and thereafter Voya Investment Management Co., LLC (“Voya IM”). Mellon and Voya IM are compensated by WTAM at no additional cost to the Funds. WTAM also arranges for transfer agency, custody, fund accounting, fund administration, securities lending and all other non-distribution related services necessary for the Funds to operate, which are generally under separate agreements entered into between the Trust on behalf of the Funds and the applicable service provider. Under the investment advisory agreement for each Fund, WTAM agrees to pay all expenses of the Funds, except for certain expenses described in Note 2.

Pursuant to a separate contractual arrangement, as also described in Note 2, WTAM arranges for the provision of CCO services with respect to each Fund, and is liable and responsible for, and administers, payments to the CCO, the Independent Trustees and counsel to the Independent Trustees in exchange for a fee, accrued daily and paid monthly in arrears, of up to 0.0044% per annum of each Fund’s average daily net assets.

WTAM expects to receive annual advisory fees from each Fund, based on a percentage of the Fund's average daily net assets, as shown in the following table:

Affiliated holdings are investments in entities in which the Fund owns 5% or more of the outstanding voting securities or are investments in entities which are under common ownership or control. Transactions in shares of affiliated ETFs for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024, as applicable, are included in an "Investment in Affiliates" supplementary table in each applicable Fund's Schedule of Investments. For these transactions, WTAM voluntarily waives a portion of its advisory fees, that it would otherwise charge, for each Fund's investment in affiliated funds. The waivers may be reduced to offset the incremental costs related to these investments (e.g., fund accounting, safekeeping, transaction fees, etc.) that are paid by WTAM out of its advisory fee. The dollar amount of advisory fees waived during the period for the Funds, if any, are included in the Statements of Operations in "Expense waivers".

During the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024, certain Funds engaged in purchase and sale transactions with funds that have a common investment adviser, WTAM. These interfund purchase and sale transactions were effected in accordance with Rule 17a-7 under the 1940 Act. For the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024, the cost of purchases, proceeds from sales and the net realized gain or loss recognized upon the disposal of securities resulting from interfund transactions are shown in the following table:

WTAM and/or WisdomTree (collectively herein, “WT”) may from time to time own shares of a Fund. As of and for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024, WT held shares of and received distributions from the following Funds, which were purchased through an unaffiliated broker in ordinary brokerage transactions in the secondary market in which the Funds’ shares trade:

In connection with the organization of the U.S. MidCap Quality Growth Fund and U.S. SmallCap Quality Growth Fund, each a newly launched Fund, WTAM contributed $100 to each Fund in exchange for 4 shares of each Fund. Prior to March 31, 2024, WTAM redeemed the aforementioned shares as 4 shares of each Fund for proceeds of $99.

4. CAPITAL SHARE TRANSACTIONS

As of March 31, 2024, there were an unlimited number of $0.001 par value shares of beneficial interest authorized by the Trust. Shares are issued and redeemed by each Fund only in creation units or multiples thereof to an authorized participant (“AP”). Except when aggregated in creation units (“Creation Unit Aggregations”), shares of each Fund are not redeemable. Transactions in shares for each Fund are disclosed in detail in the Statements of Changes in Net Assets. The consideration for the purchase of creation units of a Fund generally consists of the in-kind contribution of a basket of securities (“Deposit Securities”) and/or an amount of cash (“Cash Component”). Creation Unit Aggregations may be created in advance of receipt by a Fund of all or a portion of the applicable Deposit Securities from APs. In these circumstances, the initial deposit received from the AP will have a value greater than the NAV of the applicable Fund’s shares on the date the order is placed in proper form since, in addition to available Deposit Securities, U.S. cash must be deposited by the AP in an amount equal to the sum of (i) the Cash Component, plus (ii) generally between 102%-110%, as directed by the Trust or WTAM, which the Trust or WTAM may change from time to time, of the market value of the undelivered Deposit Securities (the “Additional Cash Deposit”) with the Fund pending delivery of any missing Deposit Securities. The Fund will return any unused portion of the Additional Cash Deposit once all of the missing Deposit Securities have been properly received from the AP or purchased by the Fund. Amounts due to be returned to an AP as of March 31, 2024, if any, is shown in the Statements of Assets and Liabilities in “Payables: Deposit due to authorized participant”. APs purchasing and redeeming creation units may be charged a purchase transaction fee and a redemption transaction fee to offset transfer and other transaction costs associated with the issuance and redemption of creation units.

GAAP provides guidance on tax provisions that prescribe a minimum threshold for financial statement recognition of the benefit of a tax position taken or expected to be taken in a tax return. As of and during the fiscal year or period ended March 31, 2024, the Funds did not have any liabilities for unrecognized tax benefits relating to uncertain income tax positions they have taken or expect to take in the future. If applicable, the Funds will recognize interest accrued related to unrecognized tax benefits in interest expense and penalties in “Other” expenses on the Statements of Operations. The Funds file tax returns with the Internal Revenue Service, the State of New York, and various other states. Specific to U.S. federal and state taxes, generally, each of the tax years in the four-year period ended March 31, 2024, remains subject to examination by taxing authorities.

7. SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

WTAM has evaluated all subsequent transactions and events through the date on which these financial statements were issued and has determined that no additional items require disclosure in these financial statements.

8. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Russia’s military invasion of Ukraine initiated in February 2022 and the economic and diplomatic responses by the United States and other countries have led to increased volatility and uncertainty in the financial markets and could continue to adversely affect regional and global economies for the foreseeable future. In response to Russia’s actions, the governments of the United States, the European Union, the United Kingdom, and many other countries collectively imposed heavy and broad-ranging economic sanctions on certain Russian individuals, corporate and banking entities, and other industries and businesses. The sanctions restrict companies from doing business with Russia and Russian companies, prohibit transactions with the Russian central bank and other key Russian financial institutions and entities, ban Russian airlines and ships from using many other countries’ airspace and ports, respectively, and place a freeze on certain Russian assets. The sanctions also removed some Russian banks from the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunications (SWIFT), the electronic network that connects banks globally to facilitate cross-border payments. In addition, the United States has banned oil and other energy imports from Russia, as well as other popular Russian exports, such as diamonds, seafood and vodka. The European Union, the United Kingdom and other countries have also placed restrictions on certain oil, energy and luxury goods imports from Russia.

These sanctions, as well as other economic consequences related to the invasion, such as additional sanctions, boycotts, changes in consumer or purchaser preferences, or cyberattacks on governments, companies or individuals, may further decrease the value and liquidity of certain Russian securities as well as securities of issuers in other countries that are subject to or otherwise adversely affected by economic sanctions related to Russia’s invasion of Ukraine, including Russian counter measures. To the extent a Fund has exposure to Russian investments or investments in countries affected by the invasion or the sanctions, the Fund’s ability to price, buy, sell, receive or deliver, or receive dividends and interest payments on such investments may be impaired. In certain circumstances, such as when there is no market for a security or other means of valuing or disposing of a security, a Fund may determine to value the affected security at zero. In addition, any exposure a Fund may have to counterparties in Russia or in countries affected by the invasion could negatively affect the Fund’s portfolio. The extent and duration of Russia’s military actions and the repercussions of such actions are impossible to predict, but could result in continued significant market disruptions, including in the oil and natural gas markets, and may negatively affect global supply chains, inflation and global growth. Further, an escalation of the military conflict beyond Ukraine’s borders could result in significant, long-lasting damage to the economies of Eastern and Western Europe as well as the global economy. These and any related events could significantly and adversely affect a Fund’s performance and the value of an investment in the Fund, even in the absence of direct exposure to Russian issuers or issuers in other countries affected by the invasion.

Financial markets around the world may experience extreme volatility, depressed valuations, decreased liquidity and heightened uncertainty and turmoil resulting from major cybersecurity events, geopolitical events (including wars, such as Russia’s invasion of Ukraine, terror attacks, and disruptions to foreign economic and trade relationships), public health emergencies, such as the COVID-19 pandemic, measures to address budget deficits, downgrading of sovereign debt, and public sentiment, among other events. Resulting market volatility, dramatic changes to interest rates, and otherwise unfavorable economic conditions may negatively impact Fund performance or impair a Fund’s ability to achieve its investment objective.

In March 2023, the financial distress of certain financial institutions raised economic concerns over disruption in the U.S. banking system and regarding the solvency of certain financial services firms. There can be no certainty that the actions taken by the U.S. government to strengthen public confidence in the U.S. banking system will be effective in mitigating the effects of financial institution failures on the economy and restoring public confidence in the U.S. banking system.

In October 2023, Hamas terrorists infiltrated Israel’s southern border from the Gaza Strip and conducted a series of attacks on civilian and military targets. Hamas also launched extensive rocket attacks on the Israeli population and industrial centers located along Israel’s border with the Gaza Strip and in other areas within the State of Israel. Following the attack, Israel’s security cabinet declared war against Hamas, and a military campaign was initiated. These events may result in significant market disruptions and may adversely affect regional and global economies.

Raising the ceiling on U.S. government debt has become increasingly politicized. Any failure to increase the total amount that the U.S. government is authorized to borrow could lead to a default on U.S. government obligations, with unpredictable consequences for economies and markets in the U.S. and elsewhere. On August 1, 2023, Fitch Ratings, Inc. downgraded its U.S. debt rating from the highest AAA rating to AA+, citing “a high and growing general government debt burden, and the erosion of governance relative to ‘AA’ and ‘AAA’ rated peers over the last two decades that has manifested in repeated debt limit standoffs and last-minute resolutions”. The impacts, if any, of the downgrade on financial markets are unknown at this time. The downgrade has potential market impacts, including but not limited to, steep stock market declines and rising bond yields.

Basis for Opinion

These financial statements are the responsibility of the Trust’s management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on each of the Funds’ financial statements based on our audits. We are a public accounting firm registered with the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States) (“PCAOB”) and are required to be independent with respect to the Trust in accordance with the U.S. federal securities laws and the applicable rules and regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the PCAOB.

We conducted our audits in accordance with the standards of the PCAOB. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement, whether due to error or fraud. The Trust is not required to have, nor were we engaged to perform, an audit of the Trust’s internal control over financial reporting. As part of our audits, we are required to obtain an understanding of internal control over financial reporting, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Trust’s internal control over financial reporting. Accordingly, we express no such opinion.

Our audits included performing procedures to assess the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to error or fraud, and performing procedures that respond to those risks. Such procedures included examining, on a test basis, evidence regarding the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. Our procedures included confirmation of securities owned as of March 31, 2024, by correspondence with the custodian, brokers and others; when replies were not received from brokers, we performed other auditing procedures. Our audits also included evaluating the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statements. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

Approval of Investment Advisory and Sub-Advisory Agreements (unaudited)

Consideration of the Approval of Investment Advisory and Sub-Advisory Agreements

WisdomTree U.S. MidCap Quality Growth Fund and WisdomTree U.S. SmallCap Quality Growth Fund
(each a “Fund,” and together the “Funds”)

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees (the “Board” or the “Trustees”) of the WisdomTree Trust (the “Trust”) held on December 11-12, 2023, the Trustees, including those Trustees who are not “interested persons” (as defined in the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended) of the Trust (the “Independent Trustees”), considered the approval of the investment advisory agreements (the “Advisory Agreement”), pursuant to which WisdomTree Asset Management, Inc. (“WTAM”) will provide the Funds with investment advisory services, and the Sub-Advisory Agreement (together with the Advisory Agreement, the “Agreements”), pursuant to which Mellon Investments Corporation (the “Sub-Adviser”) will coordinate the investment and reinvestment of the assets of the WisdomTree U.S. MidCap Quality Growth Fund and WisdomTree U.S. SmallCap Quality Growth Fund.

In considering whether to approve the Agreements, the Trustees considered and discussed information and analysis provided by WTAM and Broadridge Financial Solutions, Inc. (“Broadridge”), an independent provider of investment company data. The Trustees noted that representatives from WTAM presented preliminary information to the Trustees regarding each Fund’s proposed investment objective and principal investment strategies and risks at a meeting of the Trust’s Investment Committee, a committee of Independent Trustees, on September 14, 2023. The Independent Trustees were assisted in their review by independent legal counsel and met with counsel in executive session separate from WTAM representatives and the Sub-Adviser. In considering the approval of the Agreements, the Board considered all factors that it believed to be relevant, including those discussed below. The Board did not identify any one factor as dispositive, and each Trustee may have attributed different weights to the factors considered.

Analysis of Nature, Extent, and Quality of Services to be Provided to the Funds. The Board considered information provided to them at the meeting and in previous presentations throughout the year from WTAM representatives regarding the nature, extent, and quality of the services provided to the WisdomTree funds, recognizing WTAM’s and the Sub-Adviser’s operational capabilities and resources. It was noted that the Funds would be passively managed. The Board noted WTAM’s belief that shareholders will invest in the Funds on the strength of WTAM’s industry standing and reputation and with the expectation that WTAM will have a continuing role in providing advisory services to the Funds. The Board also noted the extensive responsibilities that WTAM will have as investment adviser to the Funds, including: the selection of, and supervisory responsibilities and activities over, the Sub-Adviser, including oversight of the Sub-Adviser’s adherence to each Fund’s investment strategy and restrictions, monitoring of the Sub-Adviser’s buying and selling of securities and derivatives transactions, review of the Sub-Adviser’s performance, review of proxies voted by the Sub-Adviser and oversight of, and the provision of consultation to, the Sub-Adviser with respect to the creation of custom creation or redemption baskets for authorized participants; oversight of the daily valuation of each Fund’s portfolio holdings; oversight of general Fund compliance with federal and state laws; and implementation of Board directives as they relate to the Funds. The Board also considered research support available to, and management capabilities of, each Fund’s management personnel and that WTAM will provide oversight of day-to-day Fund operations, including fund accounting, tax matters, administration, compliance and legal assistance in meeting disclosure and regulatory requirements.

Based on review of this information and the other factors considered at the meeting, the Board concluded that the nature, extent and quality of services to be provided by WTAM and the Sub-Adviser under the Advisory Agreement and Sub-Advisory Agreement, respectively, are adequate and appropriate and supported the Board’s approval of the Agreements.

Comparative Analysis of each Fund’s Performance, Advisory Fees and Fund Expenses. As the Funds have not yet commenced operations, the Board was not able to review each Fund’s performance. The Board discussed with WTAM representatives the portfolio management team and the investment strategies to be employed in the management of each Fund’s assets. The Board noted the reputation and experience of WTAM and the Sub-Adviser.

The Board considered the fees to be paid to WTAM by the Funds. The Board examined the fee to be paid by the Funds in light of fees paid to other investment advisers by comparable funds and the method of computing each Fund’s fee. The Board also considered the fee to be paid to the Sub-Adviser in relation to the fee to be paid to WTAM by the Funds and the respective services to be provided by the Sub-Adviser and WTAM. The Board also noted the Sub-Adviser’s fees will be paid by WTAM (out of its fee paid by the Fund) and not by the Funds. The Board considered the meaningful differences in the services that WTAM will provide to the Funds as compared to the Sub-Adviser, including that the role of the Sub-Adviser in making investment recommendations with respect to the passively managed Fund tracking an index is a rules-based function, with oversight by WTAM in seeking to ensure compliance with such rules. The Board also considered the entrepreneurial and expense risk to be borne by WTAM that is associated with each Fund’s unitary fee structure, which includes minimum fees (such as those to the Sub-Adviser), regardless of whether the asset size of the Funds grows to a sufficient size. Based on this review, the Board concluded that the fees to be paid to WTAM and the Sub-Adviser supported the Board’s approval of the Agreements.

Approval of Investment Advisory and Sub-Advisory Agreements (unaudited) (concluded)

Analysis of Profitability and Economies of Scale. As the Funds have not yet commenced operations, WTAM representatives were not able to review the dollar amount of expenses allocated and profit received by WTAM, or any economies of scale. The Board considered potential benefits to WTAM and the Sub-Adviser from acting as investment adviser and sub-adviser, respectively. The Board also considered the uncertainty of the estimated asset levels and the renewal requirements for advisory agreements and their ability to review the advisory fees annually after the initial term of the Agreements. The Board determined that because the Funds have not yet commenced operations, economies of scale were not a factor, but, to the extent in the future it were determined that material economies of scale had not been shared with the Funds, the Board would seek to have those economies of scale shared with the Funds in connection with future renewals.

* * * * *

In evaluating the Agreements, the Board considered the conclusions and determinations discussed above and also relied on its knowledge, gained through meetings and other interactions with WTAM and the Sub-Adviser, of other funds advised by WTAM and the Sub-Adviser. In light of the foregoing, the Board, including a majority of the Independent Trustees, determined to approve the Agreements.

Liquidity Risk Management Program (unaudited)

The Funds adopted a liquidity risk management program (the “Program”) pursuant to the requirements of Rule 22e-4 (the “Rule”) under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended. The Rule requires registered open-end funds, including exchange-traded funds such as the Funds, to establish liquidity risk management programs in order to effectively manage fund liquidity and shareholder redemptions. The Rule is designed to mitigate the risk that a Fund could not meet redemption requests without significantly diluting the interest of remaining investors. The Board has appointed WisdomTree Asset Management, Inc., the investment advisor to the Funds, as the Program Administrator for each Fund’s Program.

The Rule requires the Funds to assess, manage and review their liquidity risk at least annually considering applicable factors such as investment strategy and liquidity during normal and foreseeable stressed conditions, including whether the strategy is appropriate for an open-ended fund and whether the Fund has a relatively concentrated portfolio or large positions in particular issuers. The Funds must also assess their use of borrowings and derivatives, short-term and long-term cash flow projections in normal and stressed conditions, holdings of cash and cash equivalents, and borrowing arrangements and other funding sources.

The Rule also requires the Funds to classify their investments into one of four liquidity categories: highly liquid, moderately liquid, less liquid or illiquid based on the number of days a Fund expects it would take to liquidate the investment, and to review these classifications at least monthly or more often under certain conditions. The periods range from three or fewer business days for a highly liquid investment to greater than seven calendar days for settlement of a less liquid investment. Illiquid investments are those a Fund does not expect to be able to sell or dispose of within seven calendar days without significantly changing the market value of the investment. A Fund is prohibited from acquiring an investment if, after the acquisition, its holdings of illiquid assets will exceed 15% of its net assets. In addition, if a Fund permits redemptions in-kind, the Rule requires the Fund to establish redemption in-kind policies and procedures governing how and when it will engage in such redemptions.

Pursuant to the Rule’s requirements, the Program has been reviewed and approved by the Fund’s Board. Furthermore, the Board has received a written report prepared by the Program Administrator that addresses the operation of the Program, assesses its adequacy and effectiveness and describes any material changes made to the Program. The Program Administrator has monitored the Fund’s liquidity risk and the liquidity classifications of the securities held by the Fund and has determined that the Program is operating effectively.

During the period from January 1, 2023 to December 31, 2023, there were no material changes to the Program and no material liquidity events that impacted the Funds. During the period, the Funds held sufficient highly liquid assets to meet fund redemptions.

Under normal expected foreseeable Fund redemption forecasts and foreseeable stressed Fund redemption forecasts, the Program Administrator believes that the Funds maintain sufficient highly liquid assets to meet Fund redemptions.

General Information (unaudited)

Proxy Voting Policies, Procedures and Record

A complete copy of the Proxy Voting Policy may be obtained upon request, at no charge, by calling 1-866-909-WISE (9473) or writing to: WisdomTree Trust, c/o Foreside Fund Services, LLC, Three Canal Plaza Suite 100, Portland, ME, 04101.

The Trust is required to disclose annually the Funds' complete proxy voting record on Form N-PX covering the most recent 12-month period ended June 30 and to file Form N-PX with the SEC no later than August 31 of each year. The current Form N-PX for the Funds is available at no charge upon request by calling 1-866-909-WISE (9473) or through the SEC's website at www.sec.gov.

Shareholder Reports and Quarterly Portfolio Disclosure

The Funds file their complete schedule of portfolio holdings with the SEC for their first and third fiscal quarters as an exhibit to their reports on Form N-PORT. Copies of the filings are available, without charge, on the SEC's website at www.sec.gov and are also available by calling the Trust at 1-866-909-WISE (9473). Copies of the filings may also be obtained, after paying a duplicating fee, by electronic request at the following E-mail address: publicinfo@sec.gov.

Information about each Fund's portfolio holdings is available daily, without charge, at www.wisdomtree.com/investments.

The Statement of Additional Information ("SAI") has additional information about the Funds' Trustees and Officers and is available without charge upon request. Contact your financial representative for a free prospectus or SAI.

The WisdomTree Funds are exchange traded funds (“ETFs”) registered with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission as separate series (“Funds”) of WisdomTree Trust (“Trust”). WisdomTree Asset Management, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of WisdomTree, Inc., serves as the investment adviser to the Trust. None of the WisdomTree entities are affiliated with Foreside Fund Services, LLC, the Funds’ distributor. WisdomTree, Inc., its affiliates and their independent providers are not liable for any informational errors, incompleteness, delays, or for any actions taken in reliance on information contained herein.

There are risks associated with investing, including possible loss of principal. Funds focusing their investments on certain sectors and/or smaller companies increase their vulnerability to any single economic or regulatory development. This may result in greater share price volatility. Dividends are not guaranteed, and a company currently paying dividends may cease paying dividends at any time. Due to the investment strategy of certain Funds they may make higher capital gain distributions than other ETFs. Please read the Fund’s prospectus for specific details regarding the Fund’s risk profile.

Indexes are unmanaged and you cannot invest directly in an index.

Transactions in Fund shares will result in brokerage commissions and will generate tax consequences. Shares may be sold through brokerage accounts, but may be redeemed from the Funds only by Authorized Participants in large creation unit sizes of shares.

This report is intended for the Funds’ shareholders. It may not be distributed to prospective investors unless it is preceded or accompanied by the current prospectus.
